

Bread Without Yeast.

It is a well known fact that bread made with yeast, if eaten before it becomes stale, ferments again in the stomach, producing indigestion and numerous other complaints. Bread raised with Royal Baking Powder, instead of yeast, is entirely without this defect; but on the contrary, is one of the most effectual preventives of indigestion or dyspepsia. By the use of the Royal Baking Powder the saccharine properties of the flour, which are destroyed by fermentation with yeast, are preserved and the bread is made more nutritious. Ten per cent more bread is baked—because of this saving—from the same quantity of flour.

The Royal Baking Powder will also make sweet, white bread from an inferior quality of flour, a property possessed by no other leavening agent. Thus, much flour that is dark in color, or from other cause is considered below the finer grades, and therefore much cheaper, can be utilized and turned into a perfectly sweet and wholesome bread. Nor can bitter bread ever result from the use of too much, or more than the required quantity, of Royal Baking Powder; as, whether used in small or large quantities, its proportions are in such exact equivalents that they always neutralize each other. Bread made in this way does not require mixing over night, but may be prepared ready for the oven in a few minutes; an advantage that will be readily appreciated by every house-keeper.

The German Bundesrath which approximates our Senate in theory, has 62 members, while the Reichstag has 397. Great Britain's hereditary legislators numbered at the last return 512, including the representative peers, while the Commons have a membership of 658. The people down in the Mohican Valley—Clearfork branch are excited over the prospects of a new railroad. Since the Nypauno has thrown a wet blanket over the Atlantic & Pacific, capitalists have perfected a scheme to make a connection with a road running into Pittsburgh and that road, and one more trunk line will be established. Ex-President Jewitt, of the Erie, is at the head of the movement, and there is some probability of something being done.

John Sellers is the name of a very eccentric old farmer living three miles east of New Philadelphia, Ohio. One of his peculiarities regarding his stock and his own personal appearance is that he never in any manner interferes with nature. He never shears his sheep, but allows the wool to grow on their backs until it drags on the ground. People came for miles during the last summer to see his flock of sheep that had not been shorn for six years. From a distance they looked like hay-shocks in the field. The wool was eighteen inches in length. His geese are never picked, and under no consideration would he place a ring in the snouts of his hogs to prevent them from rooting.

His two sons, Cornelius and William K. will continue to manage his railroad property.

Money will do many things, but it cannot purchase life.

A DAYTON PATTERNMAKER.

Dayton, O., possesses many points of attraction which interest and please the visitor. The National Soldiers' Home, with its beautiful grounds and war-scarred veterans full of reminiscence and of tales of valor; the Parthenon-shaped County Court House, the Cooper Academy, the Orphan Asylum, the Lunatic Asylum and the Market House are all public institutions well worth seeing, and of the private residences, many are extremely handsome and striking. Dayton owes its importance, however, very largely to its numerous and varied manufactures, which give employment to many intelligent mechanics. One of these large establishments is the Buckeye Brass and Iron Works, which is well known for the excellence of its products. Among its employees is John R. Rea, a patternmaker, whose home is at No. 127 Jones street. Mr. Rea speaks thus of his long standing trouble with neuralgia:

"That Athlophoros is the medicine for neuralgia and rheumatism. It rid me of my pain so quickly that I could scarcely realize that it was gone. But it was, and I must give Athlophoros the credit of doing what is claimed for it. I was an extreme sufferer for four years from neuralgia, the disease, of course, being worse at some times than at others. It was no common headache, but the kind of neuralgia that confined me to my house and many times to my bed. Last fall I had a very severe attack, which lasted about six weeks. I was entirely helpless and was not able to get out of the house at all. I did everything and used every remedy I had used before, but nothing gave me any relief.

"Hearing of Athlophoros, and of what a wonderful cure it had made in the case of Mr. Rockfield's daughter, I bought a bottle of it. I took four or five doses the first day and night and immediately began to improve. That night I had good sleep, something which I have not had for many nights previous. When I awoke the next morning my neuralgia was gone. From that day to this I have not had it and I have not spent a penny for medicine since."

"Do you not think that a very quick cure?"

"You may call it what you please, the neuralgia is gone and I cannot explain how it went."

"Did you take any more of the medicine after the first day and night?"

"Yes; I kept on using it until the bottle was empty for fear that I had not taken enough to drive the disease away entirely. Then I bought another bottle to have on hand in case I should need it. I did not use it, however, but my wife did. She had been subject to sharp rheumatic pains in her shoulder, but she has never had any return of them since she used the Athlophoros."

"The Athlophoros cured you and your wife at a cost of only two dollars?"

"Yes; but it was not a question of dollars, but of how to get rid of the terrible sufferings and be able to attend to my work, from which I had been detained so long. I would have given a hundred dollars to any one who would have cured me as effectually as Athlophoros did for a dollar. It is cheap at any price, for it does what is claimed for it—cures rheumatism and neuralgia. I have not lost a day's work since I used it."

"If you cannot get Athlophoros of your druggist, we will send it express, paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLOPHOROS CO., 112 Wall Street, New York."

For Instant Use

As a reliable remedy, in cases of Croup, Whooping Cough, or sudden Colds, and for the prompt relief and cure of throat and lung diseases, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is invaluable. Mrs. E. G. Edgerly, Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes: "I consider Ayer's Cherry Pectoral a most important remedy for home use. I have tested its curative power, in my family, many times during the past thirty years, and have never known it to fail. It will relieve the most serious affections of the throat and lungs, whether in children or adults." John H. Stoddard, Petersburg, Va., writes: "I have never found a medicine equal to

for the prompt relief of throat and lung diseases peculiar to children. I consider it an absolute cure for all such affections, and am never without it in the house." Mrs. L. E. Herman, 187 Mercer st., Jersey City, writes: "I have always found Ayer's Cherry Pectoral useful in my family." B. T. Johnson, Mt. Savage, Md., writes: "For the speedy cure of sudden Colds, and for the relief of children afflicted with Croup, I have never found anything equal to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It is the most potent of all the remedies I have ever used." W. H. Stickler, Terre Haute, Ind., writes: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cured my wife of a severe lung affection, supposed to be Quick Consumption. We now regard the Pectoral as a household necessity." E. M. Breckenridge, Brainerd, Minn., writes: "I am subject to Bronchitis, and wherever I go, am always sure to have a bottle of

with me. It is without a rival for the cure of bronchial affections."
